Yes, DanaDooDah, There really was a Mama Cass in Scientology. Hear it in L. Ron Hubbard's own words.

In a stream of December 20, DanaDooDah discussed Mama Cass having been in Scientology. I don't think she and a lot of other people know about the fact that L. Ron Hubbard himself confirmed that.

Doesn't get much better than that as far as Scientology proof, so seemed worthy of a blog post shout-out.

Here's the deets.

This is from a lecture by L. Ron Hubbard titled RJ68 "Ron's Journal 1968" recorded in January 1969. It sums up what went on in Scientology in 1968. You can listen to the full lecture here.

At around 22 minutes into the lecture, in an introduction to a long list of celebrities, Hubbard says:

> Now another big piece of news was 1968 will go down as the year celebrities came into Scientology openly. We had many celebrities before but nothing like 1968, and in the first month of 1969 they're still flooding in. Movie stars, the famous pop groups, great writers, wonderful people and we were right there with top, top Class VIII auditing to give them. So, that was nice timing. Let me read you here, some of the great international names who joined Scientology and benefited from it's processes.

Then he specifically names Mama Cass.

And there you have it, right out of the horse's mouth.

You're welcome.
